

I love nature, especially animals, but birds are, with their elegance and freedom of flight, that fascinate me most and inspired my photographs, and I hope to give to these beautiful animals the right light they deserve.

I became interested in nature and wildlife photography in 2013 only after buying a camera for video, but without that, I really cared, but after the first few shots and a couple of courses/workshops I chose the nature photography. However sometimes I "try" other photographic genres such as landscape or street photography, and in this adventure often share the pleasure of taking pictures with my wife and some friends of mine here in Sardinia, land where I've been living for many years so far.

As photographic gears, I use mainly Sony and specifically a Sony Alpha A9 for wildlife, and a Sony Alpha A7Rii only for landscape. The lenses are Sony 300mm f / 2.8 SSM II , Sony 100-400GM and Sony 200-600G for nature photography, while for landscape and other genres I use a Zeiss Batis 18mm f/2.8, Zeiss Sony Zeiss 55mm f/1.8 and Sigma14mm f/1.8. In addition to this site I public my pictures in other sites such as 500px, Flickr, Facebook and FotoABC.

As you can imagine the dog in the photo I am not me but my dog Max, a beautiful half-breed, crossed with a husky, and who accompanied us in many good times for over 16 years... Unfortunately now it is gone.
